

Before I came to college I wish I had known...

That it didn't matter how late I scheduled my first class, I'd still sleep through it.

That college kids throw paper airplanes too.

That every clock on campus shows a different time.

That you were in high school, so what!

That I'd go to a party on a week night.

That Chem Labs require more time than all my other 18 credit hours combined.

That you can know everything, and still not ace a test.

That home would be a great place to visit.

That most of my education would be obtained outside my classes.

That friendship is more than getting drunk together.

That Sunday is a figment of the world's imagination.

What I was getting into.

What it's like to be completely on my own, making all my own decisions.

To expect and accept loneliness. It takes time to get past superficial relationships and form close friendships.

That I would be doing a lot of changing and learning to accept myself and other people.

That you can love a lot of people a lot of different ways.

That friendships are what make this place worthwhile!
