

To me, the Midwest Symposium does three things really well. The first is you can get a lot of continuing education credit because you can go there for two and a half days. But more important than just the CEU's, it's the quality of the presentations and I've always found the quality to be top notch. And the last thing I want to add, the third I'd say is sort of the cherry on top, beyond the CEU's and just top notch quality, is the ubiquitousness or the broadness of the Midwest Symposium.
