

ENGL 640 Studies in Genre

Contemporary American Memoir

The course will focus on memoirs of the past 25 years and will examine, among other topics, how this popular genre has become a kind of literary haven for historically underrepresented voices. We'll also explore and attempt to name some of the aesthetic and rhetorical features of contemporary memoir and, in multiple short writing assignments and one conference-length paper, apply a range of literary theories and critical approaches to these books:
