EMPLOYEE WHISTLEBLOWER POLICY

Policy Name:	Employee Whistleblower Policy
Effective Date:	September 8, 2016
Responsible Office:	Human Resources
Category:	Personnel

I. Purpose

Northwest Missouri State University is committed to lawful and ethical behavior and expects its campus community members to act in accordance with all University policies and applicable laws and regulations. The purpose of this policy is to encourage employees to report what they, in good faith, believe to be serious violations of University policy, violations of law, dishonesty, fraud, or other misconduct (collectively, “wrongful conduct”) and to protect the person making the report (i.e., the “whistleblower”) from retaliatory action.

II. Reporting

A. Activities to Report

The University encourages employees to report suspected wrongful conduct, and this includes, but is not limited to, the following:

1. Theft, misuse, or other misappropriation of University property, resources, or assets;
2. Mismanagement or waste of funds;
3. Improper records destruction;
4. Providing false or misleading information;
5. Unethical activities;
6. A substantial and specific danger to public health or safety;
7. Forgery or unauthorized alteration of documents; and
8. Concealing any of the above actions.

B. Reporting Procedure

An employee wishing to make a report of wrongful conduct under this policy should do so to an appropriate University supervisor as soon as he/she becomes aware of such conduct. The supervisor is then expected to forward the report to the Vice President of Strategy and Operations. If, for any reason, an employee finds it difficult to make a report to a supervisor, he/she may file the report directly to the Vice President of Strategy and Operations.

A report involving wrongful conduct by the Vice President of Strategy and Operations or President should be reported as follows:

1. If the subject of the report is the Vice President of Strategy and Operations, the report should be made to the President.
2. If the subject of the report is the President, the Vice President of Strategy and Operations will immediately notify the Chair of the Board of Regents ("Board Chair") upon receipt of the report.

Employees making a report should not discuss the situation with anyone other than their supervisor, the Vice President of Strategy and Operations (or President or Board Chair), and other appropriate individuals designated by the University, if any, during the investigation of the matter. Likewise, a supervisor forwarding on a report should not further discuss the matter other than with appropriate personnel.

C. Good Faith Reporting

An employee making a report must do so in good faith and have reasonable grounds for believing wrongful conduct is involved. Making allegations that are found to be malicious, reckless, grossly negligent, or purposefully false will be viewed as a serious offense and may result in discipline, up to and including termination.

D. Anonymous Reporting

Reports may be submitted anonymously by completing a comment card via the Northwest Missouri State University webpage. It is essential that anonymous reports contain as much specific information as possible to justify the commencement of an investigation. An investigation of unspecified wrongdoing or broad allegations will not be undertaken without reasonable and verifiable evidentiary support. In addition, since an investigation of an anonymous report will not include an interview with the reporter, it may be more difficult to evaluate the credibility of the allegations. Therefore, anonymous reports are often less likely to result in a full investigation and/or findings against the person alleged to have engaged in wrongful conduct.

III. Investigation

Following the receipt of a report, the Vice President of Strategy and Operations (or President or Board Chair) will do a preliminary assessment and determine whether an investigation should be commenced based on the facts provided. If an investigation is deemed appropriate, an internal and/or external investigator(s) will be designated. The scope and timing of the investigation will vary by circumstance, but an investigation will generally involve a review of relevant documents and other records (e.g., physical documents, emails, browser histories, voicemails, text messages, etc.) and interviews with individuals who may have knowledge of the situation.

If through the course of an investigation the University determines that wrongful conduct has occurred, a written finding will be presented to the appropriate senior administrator(s) for appropriate action. Action will be based on the nature of the violation and the position(s) held by the implicated employee(s) and will follow established disciplinary guidelines. Actions will be consistent with all applicable University policies.

A person making a report of wrongful conduct will usually be informed of the disposition of the report and the findings of any investigation, although there may be overriding reasons, such as legal limitations, not to do so. Additionally, any action taken against an employee as a consequence of the findings of an investigation may be personal and confidential, in which case the reporter will not be informed of such consequences.

IV. Confidentiality

Reports of suspected wrongful conduct, and investigations of such reports, shall be kept confidential to the extent possible. However, consistent with the need to conduct an adequate investigation, the University cannot guarantee complete confidentiality. Disclosure of information related to a report and investigation by University personnel to other uninvolved individuals will be viewed as a serious offense and may result in discipline, up to and including termination.

V. No Retaliation

The University will use its best efforts to ensure that an employee who, in good faith, reports actual or suspected wrongful conduct does not suffer an adverse employment action or other retaliation as a result of making such report. An employee who retaliates against another employee for making a good faith report of wrongful conduct, or for participating in the investigation of such, is subject to discipline, up to and including termination.
